Alliance in Opposition To Tennis "Sporthall" Retains Own Attorney

There have been no meetings on the subject since the Joint Recreation Board discussed it last month, but the controversy over building a structure that would enclose three tennis courts, and possibly an office, at Community Park South remains at a low boil.

The group opposing the structure, Community Park Neighborhood Alliance, has hired Princeton Attorney Bill Potter to represent its interests before the Planning Board; and, if needed, before Township Committee.

Construction of the enclosure would have to be approved first by the Planning Board and then by the Township. No application has yet been filed with the Planning Board.

In another new development, the Princeton Community Democratic Organization (PCDO) will hold an open public meeting on the issue Sunday night, August 16, at the Clay Street Learning Center beginning at 7 p.m. Representatives of the Neighborhood Alliance and of the Princeton Tennis Program will be asked to present their positions.

The Learning Center is located on the corner of Witherspoon and Clay streets.

Members of the Neighborhood Alliance have been meeting regularly since April in an effort to hall plans to enclose three tennis courts at Community Park South with a fabric and aluminum structure 42 feet high at its peak. The roof of the Sporthall, as the structure is called, is translucent white and the sides are made of green fabric.

In addition, a 2,100-square-foot office building would be placed adjacent to, or within, the Sporthall. This would house the offices of the Princeton Tennis Program, which are now located in Skillman.

The Princeton Tennis Program, a private nonprofit organization, has been operating the tennis instruction program for the Recreation Department tor more than 30 years.

Because of a dearth of indoor courts in the Princeton area, as well as the desire to be able to use courts at Community Park on a year

John Street Residents Promised Relief

Police Chief Thomas Michaud said Friday that he anticipates significant improvement in the situation that provoked impassioned complaints by residents of lower John Street at last Tuesday night's meeting of Borough Council. He plans to put a new strategy into place that includes placing more police in the neighborhood. "We will be a little less tolerant and will step up enforcement," he said

About 25 residents of the area around John/Lytle/Clay streets came to the Council meeting to complain that their neighborhood has become a gathering place for young people who behave badly, and that this has led to a deterioration in their quality of life.

John Street resident Rhetta Hoagland said that the intersection of Clay and John streets attracts large groups of males and some females, ages 14 to 21, who bring "noise, filthy language, loud boom boxes, rap music. They urinate in public view, sit on parked cars, and verbally abuse neighbors."

She said she had gone to the Borough Police, and had been told that their hands are tied. "They said they can't abridge their constitutional rights. What about our rights? Are there laws for disturbing the peace, destroying property, loitering?"

Ms. Hoagland was one of nearly a dozen residents who spoke about conditions they called "intolerable." Faye Streeter, who lives in one of the Borough's affordable housing units at the corner of John and Clay streets, said she was ready to sell. "My windows are on the sidewalk," she said. "I can't open them when there is bad language and people drinking beer and liquor."

Another unit owner said she was frightened by what was going on. Others in the neighborhood spoke of a heavy smell of marijuana and of youngsters sitting on the front and back porches of their homes.

Borough Clerk and John Street resident Penney Carter said that a number of young people congregate in the neighborhood park at the corner of John and Lytle streets.

Hospital Oil Spill Almost Reaches The Pond in Community Park North

An apparent defect in the venting system of a fuel tank at the Princeton Medical Center on Witherspoon Street caused a sizable oil spill during a fuel delivery to the hospital early Friday morning.

The spill threatened the pond in Community Park North and was still being cleaned up at press time.

According to Township police, The Medical Center was receiving a 7000 gallon delivery of medium weight fuel oil from Florence-based TK Transport at 4:30 a.m., when a large quantity of the fuel seeped into an underground pump station adjacent to its intended storage tank. Once in the station, the oil was captured by a sump pump and ejected into the storm drain system, where it travelled northwest from the hospital to a stream just east of the pond.

The New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) anticipated "no permanent damage," from the incident, spokesperson Loretta O'Donnell said Tuesday.

Cleanup Day Planned August 1 By the Watershed Association

The Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association is sponsoring a Watershed-Wide Cleanup Day, a region-wide litter collection event, on Saturday, August 1. Park cleanups will be held from 10 until 2 at Colonial Park in Lawrence Township, Cranbury Creek and Water's Edge Park in Plainsboro, Community Park North in Princeton, and the Delaware and Raritan Canal along the towpath from Harrison Street towards Kingston.

All individuals, families, clubs, and organizations in this area are encouraged to participate in park cleanup, organize their own litterwalks, or take time on this day to clean up trash in the outdoors.

The Watershed Association will distribute litter collection logs to everyone who participates in the Watershed-Wide Cleanup either as a member of an organized cleanup or on their own, and will keep track of how much litter is collected throughout the entire watershed region.

In addition to regular participants, volunteers are needed to act as park site coordinators. These vofunteers will be paired with Watershed staff members or other volunteers at the four large park cleanups to act as on-site Watershed representatives. They will oversee cleanup participants, distribute cleanup supplies and litter records, help weigh trash, and assist with disposal.

Anyone volunteering as a park cleanup coordinator will be provided with pre-cleanup orientation and a free Watershed Action T-shirt.

Any individuals or groups interested in planning their own cleanups or litterwalks are encouraged to do so and should contact the Watershed Association for litter records, sign-up sheets, and garbage bags for as long as supplies last. Watershed Action Team T-shirts will be on sale for $7 and litter records will be available at the Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association office at 31 Titus Mill Road in Pennington.

To participate in the Watershed-Wide Cleanup in any way, call 737-3735.

Princeton Community Democratic Organization President Sheldon Sturges said that the PCDO had held an executive committee meeting a month ago during which the issue of the proposed Sporthall surfaced. What struck him, he said, was that there was a group in town that wasn't being fully heard.

The purpose of the August 16 meeting, he said, is to open the issue up to broader discussion so people will feel listened to. "In the 50-year context of the town, it does seem as if the John Street community has not been listened to as frequently as others, or been asked for their point of view on issues."

The Community Park Neighborhood Alliance plans to meet Tuesday night, July 28, at 7:30 at First Baptist Church to prepare for the PCDO meeting.

Medical Center Wins High Accreditation From Jt. Commission

The Medical Center at Princeton recently received "Accreditation with Commendation" from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations.

The accreditation represents exemplary performance in meeting national standards set by the commission; it is the highest level of accreditation awarded by the body.

Formed in 1951, the Joint Commission is dedicated to improving the quality of the nation's health care through the voluntary accreditation of almost 11,000 hospitals and home care agencies and more than 7,000 other health care organizations.

Across the United States, only 15 percent of all hospitals receive the accreditation. One of the criteria for achieving it is a summary grid score of 90 or higher; the Medical Center summary grid score was 98.

The Joint Commission's on-site survey of the medical center took place in March and April. The survey included the hospital unit; Home Care; Princeton House, the medical center's behavioral healthcare unit; and Merwick, which provides sub-acute care and rehabilitation.

"We are very proud of the high quality patient care which our physicians and employees provide every day, and to have this work recognized by the Joint Commission's Accredition with Commendation is a great honor," said Dennis Doody, president of the medical center.

round basis, the Princeton Tennis Program has proposed the construction of the Sporthall. The Recreation Board has agreed in concept with the plans of the PTP.

A fact sheet prepared by the PTP states that the group wants to make a $1 million gift to Princeton to enhance the existing public tennis court complex. "Construction and operation will be funded by private donations, not subsidized by taxpayers, while still providing Princeton residents with preferential use," according to the fact sheet.

"The Princeton Tennis Program believes this will not only benefit residents of all ages, but will also be another reason for the nation to once again look towards Princeton as a leader in community tennis programming as well as a model for Park and Recreation Departments throughout the country," the fact sheet states.

Players Surveyed

At the June 25 Recreation Board meeting, Jack Roberts, the Department's executive director, announced that he had begun a survey of people who use the Community Park tennis facility to find out their interest in having enclosed courts. Also included were such questions as how often they play, whether they play tennis year-round, and where they live.

Last week, Mr. Roberts said the Recreation Department had received a tremendous response to the survey, but that the press of activities during the summer has not allowed time to analyze the returns.

Council Opts for Crossing Guards, Replacing Hazardous Route Busing

TOPICS Of the Town

Between now and the opening of school, Princeton Borough will make an all-out effort to recruit a sufficient number of crossing guards to allow it to stop hazardous route busing.

Last school year, the Borough spent $21,621 on hazardous route busing. This money was used to bus children who have to cross a hazardous roadway to get to elementary school.

Hazardous crossings include Rosedale Road and Elm Road, which are used by students at Johnson Park; and Stockton Street, Bayard Lane, and Nassau Street, which are used by Community Park students. Nassau Street is also crossed by youngsters enrolled in the Princeton Charter School.

Up to now, the Borough has had difficulty in recruiting a sufficient number of crossing guards, even without adding the new assignments that would be necessary if hazardous route busing were terminated.

Councilwoman Sandra Starr, however, urged that the next month-and-a-half be spent in recruiting from groups whose members might be interested in the job, and whose work schedules would coincide with crossing guard hours.

Among the groups she singled out were teachers' aides and nursery school teachers. The goal, she said, would be to have all Borough youngsters go to school with the assistance of a crossing guard.

The Princeton Regional School District is responsible for busing children who live more than two miles from the school to which they are assigned. The Borough has a policy stating that the school district must also pay busing costs for children who are bused for purposes of racial balance.

In the past, the Borough has tapped a number of sources for its crossing guards, including Princeton University students, custodial workers, and a high school senior or two, said Police Chief Thomas Michaud. On occasion, two people have signed up to share one assignment.

Hours are 7:45 to 8:30 a.m. and 2:45 to 3:30 p.m. on school days. Guards are paid $20 a day.

Anyone interested in obtaining more information about becoming a crossing guard should call Borough Police Lieutenant Anthony Federico at 924-4141.

By State mandate, the Borough must set aside one half of one percent of the cost of a major municipal construction project to be used for minority outreach and training. Last Tuesday night, Council members discussed how the $19,000 that will be set aside for the Borough Hall renovation should be used.

Borough Clerk Penney Carter said she had talked with State officials, who suggested the money might be contributed to the Mercer County Vocational School. But Councilman Roger Martindell said the Joint Civil Rights Commission might want to have a significant impact on how the money is spent.

"I propose the civil rights staff be given free rein to find the right program," said Mr. Martindell.

Mayor Reed wondered if the Borough could do emergency repairs on Witherspoon Street sidewalks with the money, while Ms. Starr said Council might look at a model being used by ISLES in Trenton.

It was suggested by Borough Engineer Carl Peters that the $19,000 could be used to help with the cost of renovating the five houses on Leigh Avenue the Borough owns, and which it plans to turn into affordable housing units.

No decision was made that night, but the issue will be discussed again at a later meeting.

After Civil Rights Director Michael Nabors provided a rundown of some of the current projects of the Civil Rights Office, a petition was presented to Council signed by 113 people. It asked that the Civil Rights Office not be merged into the recently formed Human Services Department.

In April, Borough Council and Township Committee approved the creation of the new department, which would enfold welfare, civil rights, senior services, and youth services. The Civil Rights Commission and the Commission on Aging are scheduled to be disbanded at the end of the year.

At Councilwoman Mildred Trotman's recommendation, Council agreed to place the petition's request on a future agenda.

Rec. Board to Develop Inclusive Definition Of Today's Family

Princeton Recreation Director Jack Roberts suggested at the June meeting of the Recreation Board that a new definition of "family" be developed for use by department staff in determining eligibility for Community Pool membership. He asked Township Attorney Edwin Schmierer to help the board formulate such a definition.

"There is always some question at the beginning of a season about non-family members trying to sneak into the pool," Mr. Schmierer said last week.

"In years past, the issue was comparatively simple. A family unit consisted of mother, father, and the two kids."

Today, Mr. Schmierer added, in an era of non-traditional family groupings, it has become a little harder to determine family membership.

Mr. Roberts told TOWN TOPICS that his concern was prompted by a desire to avoid the difficulties occasionally caused by a "very conservative definition."

The Princeton Recreation Department defines family as, "Husband and wife, single parents, or widow or widower, and all children natural or adopted, unmarried and living at home, including state ward children — who are not yet 21 years of age on June 1, of the particular swimming season."

The intent of any change would be to liberalize the language of the definition to reflect actual practice, rather than to add restrictions, Mr. Roberts said.

If a same sex couple applied for family membership at the Princeton pool, for instance, and it turned out both members were Princeton residents, their application would be granted.

That is not the case everywhere. In West Hartford, Conn., for example, a family discount at town-owned pools was twice denied to a gay couple who applied for it.

The two men were told last year that they would have to pay two individual annual rates — or $345 twice — rather than the family rate of $395. The men have charged that the policy is unfair and discriminates against gay couples, as well as other nontraditional families.

Whenever a "non-traditional" family applies for membership at the Princeton pool, the staff must ascertain whether all members of the group actually reside together in Princeton.

"It can get pretty difficult — especially if there are several last names," Mr. Roberts said. For example, he pointed out, the members of one family — which does qualify for membership — have five different last names. In such situations, Mr. Roberts usually solicits additional information directly from the applicant.

Case by Case

Mr. Schmierer said his office is working on guidelines for permissible questions to applicants. "I do not think we have an urgent problem, here," he pointed out. "Sometime in the fall, we'll come up with new guidelines; in the meantime, we have advised the Recreation Department staff to continue evaluating applications on a case-by-case basis, as they have always done. It works very well."

The attorney has appealed to the League of Municipalities for information about other municipal definitions of "family," he said. He has also approached Princeton University for information about its guidelines for "family" graduate housing.

"I don't think what we create will be terribly earth-shattering," Mr. Schmierer indicated, "and the problem has probably been blown out of proportion. We do, however, want to be more inclusive about what constitutes a bono fide household."

The Final Barrier Is Removed For Development of Rushbrook

At a meeting last Wednesday, The Delaware & Raritan Canal Commission authorized construction of an emergency access route and bicycle path that would link Phase I and Phase II of the Rushbrook development.

Phase I was approved in February 1997; on July 9 the Planning Board gave final approval to Phase II. Approval was subject to the developer meeting all conditions laid down when preliminary approval of the project, to be constructed off Pretty Brook Road, was given in July 1993. Phase II of the development, by far the larger of the two, contains 21 building lots.

The only condition that was at issue before the Planning Board on July 9 was the construction of the emergency access road/bike bath, since The D&R Canal Commission holds jurisdiction over the road site under stream corridor review regulations.

But last week the D&R Canal Commission agreed to allow the builder of Rushbrook, Princeton Real Estate, Inc., to amend the existing easement and to go ahead with building the emergency access road/bike path.

At the time it granted preliminary site plan approval to Phase II, the Planning Board determined that the property was not safe to develop unless an emergency road were built linking both phases.

Thomas Letizia, attorney for Princeton Real Estate, Inc., said the developer was very close to breaking ground. "We are trying to move quickly."

Commission Gives Township Green Light For Deer Hunt

Members of the Princeton Environmental Commission agreed at their meeting last week to oversee a controlled deer hunt in the Township — perhaps as early as October or November.

A number of details have yet to be determined; they will be worked out in conjunction with the state Division of Fish, Game, and Wildlife, which will assign a liaison to work with the commission.

The commission pfans to appoint an ad hoc committee by the end of the summer, to deal with all issues related to the hunt.

The Township Committee unanimously approved the concept of the hunt in June -- and asked the environmental commission to fine-tune the plan.

A hunt has become necessary, as a burgeoning deer population has over-run the Township in recent years. The herd has been estimated at approximately 1,300, while the number of deer the Township can sustain is about 300 deer overall — or 20 per square mile.

Deer have become a growing menace to motorists in recent years; the incidence of Lyme disease (carried by white-tailed deer) has increased; and browsing deer have destroyed vegetation and undergrowth.

Deer-hunting with firearms is allowed in the Township for only six days — in late December and early January. It obviously has not controlled the deer problem.

The "deer maintenance program" calls for eliminating a total of 1,000 deer over the next five years. Does will be targeted, rather than the bucks, from which hunters frequently take antlers as trophies.

The original proposal specified that only police officers who are licensed hunters be allowed to participate. It is doubtful, however, that there are enough licensed hunters on the Township force to manage herd reduction by themselves, according to Police Chief Anthony Gaylord.

There is also the question of whether licensed hunters will be willing to participate in the hunt; and the committee may have to devise a means of attracting additional shooters.

It will also have to decide on a location — or locations — for the hunt. The commission could ask the Township to make municipally-owned fand available; it may want to hold the hunt on county-owned fand, such as Herrontown Woods; and it could also solicit private property owners to donate acreage. No private property, however, would be utilized without the owners' consent.

Public safety would be a real concern if the hunt were conducted on public lands, according to Recreation Department Director Jack Roberts. "The Recreation Department ought to review any land under our jurisdiction," he said yesterday.

Mr. Roberts also pointed out it was conceivabfe that Community Park North might be targeted, as it borders both Witherspoon Woods and Mountain Lakes, which are owned by the Township.

Howell History Farm Plans to Hold A Barn Raising

Twenty-five years ago, Inez Howell of Pennington made sure that a 200-year-old barn would be among the treasures left to future generations. She gave her 126-acre farm to Mercer County, whose Park Commission operates it as Howell Living History Farm.

On Saturday, August 1, Howell Living History Farm will offer a day of barn tours, barn raising and a barn dance concert. Tours will be conducted by the Friends of Howell Farm, who plan to help restore the barn with funds raised partially through the operation of a corn maze.

The barn, listed on New Jersey and National Registers of Historic Places as the Henry Phillips Barn, is slated for a three-phase restoration process which is already under way.

Tours will be offered at 11, 1, and 3 and will highlight restoration areas such as the hay mow, threshing floor and original horse barn. Information about the barn's history, restoration and future uses will be available throughout the day.

In connection with the tours, the New Jersey Barn Company will raise a 20'x22' barn beginning at 10 at Howell's "Amazing Maize Maze" on Valley Road, near the Belle Mountain Ski Area. When the barn is completed in late afternoon, it will become the setting for a 13-week music series featuring fiddle, country and barn dance music.

The series will open at 7p.m. Saturday, August 1, with a free concert by Nashville-based Andy May and Company. Sunday's 1and 3 p.m. performances by the New Jersey Grand Opry Children's Show will continue the "Music in the Maze" series, which will run Sundays through October 25. Music is sponsored by The American Maze Company and The Friends of Howell Farm.

On August 2, the Farm will also offer a children's craft program, "Amazing Instruments," held at the farmhouse from 11 to 3. Cost is $2 per craft.

The farm's fund-raising Amazing Maize Maze will be open weekends and special days August 1 to October 25. This year's maze is shaped like a fiddle, highlighting the music and dance of the circa 1900 time period. For maze information call 397-2225.

Howell Farm is on Valley Road, just off Route 29, two miles south of Lambertville. Admission is free. For information call 737-3299.

Man Fondles Three Teenage Girls At Wilson Fountain

A middle-aged man allegedly fondled the buttocks of three underage girls at the Woodrow Wilson Fountain on Washington Road late Sunday.

The girls — two California residents aged 16 and 14, and a 15-year-old Delaware resident — were in town attending a youth program at the University. They were at the fountain with an adult chaperone when the crime occurred, between 10:15 and 10:40 p.m.

Following the incident, the chaperone confronted the suspect, who left the area, police said. Responding Borough Police officers and Princeton Public Safety officers searched the area but were unable to locate the suspect, who is described as a heavy-set white male, 5'9, with light colored hair and a receding hairline.

Drug Scam

A 21-year-old Clearview Avenue man whom authorities suspected of fraudulently obtaining controlled prescription drugs in late June, surrendered to Township police July 14.

Jamie N. Bernhard allegedly entered Princeton Shopping Center's Eckerd drugstore, told the clerk he was picking up a customer's prescriptions for the drugs Diazepam and Demerol, signed a fake name on the insurance slips, and left with the narcotics, June 29 police said.

Bernhard was later released on his own recognizance with a complaint summons.

Paint-Ball Drive By

A 15-year-old San Francisco boy was the victim of harassment on Nassau Street at Palmer Square June 15.

The victim was walking on the sidewalk at 10:45 p.m., when the suspects — four black males in a white car with a black top — shot at him with paint ball guns police said.

Cornelius Toma, 21, of Greenland Court, was arrested for possession of marijuana and PCP at 2:21 p.m. Friday. A Borough offic-

TRENTON ROUNDUP

Bumper Fruit Crop

Farmers and agricultural experts are predicting that fruit from the summer's harvest will be sweet, plentiful, and inexpensive this year.

Dry, warm winter, a mild winter, and just enough spring rain have conspired to produce a bumper crop. There has been no cold weather to reduce the crop.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates, for example, that New Jersey farmers will pick 75 million pounds of peaches this year, up from 65 million last year.

Peach prices are stable, running about 60 cents to $1.39 per pound. Blueberry prices, however, have been driven down by the abundant supply. The anticipated yield of 36 million pounds is expected to top last year's yield by four million pounds.

Growers are worried that wholesale prices in some areas may fall below the cost of production; and they fear that a general over-abundance may drive the price of other fruit down, as well.

Carding for Cigarettes

New Jersey retailers routinely disregard rules enacted to curb teen smoking, according to The Courier-News of Bridgewater, which recently conducted an investigation involving cigarette sales to reporters, ages 19 to 24.

Selling cigarettes to anyone under 18 is illegal; federal regulations adopted in February 1997 also require vendors to card any purchaser under the age of 27.

According to the newspaper's investigation, in 200 purchases, buyers were carded only 50 times. Reporters visited 100 outlets in four counties, buying cigarettes twice at each location.

Supermarkets, department stores and chain-store pharmacies were the most likely to ask for identification, the report noted.

A government study released in April found that the number of teenage smokers is steadily rising. Merchants who fail to card young buyers are more likely to inadvertently sell cigarettes to minors as a result, according to Mitch Zeller, assistant commissioner of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Emissions Testing Contract

Leaders in both the state Assembly and the Senate have called for hearings to investigate Governor Christine Whitman's plan to engage a private firm to build and operate a tougher auto emissions testing system — at a cost of at least $400 million.

Senate President Donald DiFrancesco and Assembly Speaker Jack Collins have both expressed misgivings about the governor's decision to use a private firm, rather than state workers, for the job.

The state plans to award a seven-year contract to the only bidder on the job, the Parsons Infrastructure and Technology Group.

Critics say the bid will cost taxpayers more in the long run; they question Parsons' track record; and they charge that the company greased the deal by hiring politically-connected firms and donating more than $62,000 to Republican-controlled campaign committees.

The tougher emissions tests are being pushed by the federal government as one way New Jersey can comply with federal Clean Air Act requirements. New Jersey has the second-worst air pollution problem in the nation.

College Seeks Housing For Danish Students

Mercer County Community College is seeking housing for 28 Danish students, ages 17 to 18, from Denmark's Aabenraa College who will be studying international business five-days per week at Mercer this fall. These Danish/English-speaking students will spend eight weeks here starting in October.

The students, who are in their second year of study at Aabenraa, will observe the students enrolled in Mercer's International Business Practice Firm course, the only one offered by a community college. The course simulates the operation of an actual business in real time using cutting-edge technological tools.

Hosts need to provide a private room for the student, two meals a day and transportation to and from the college on school days. These students will be away for three weekends on class trips but would like to participate in activities with their hosts on the other weekends. Hosts will be provided with a stipend.

Those interested in this unique opportunity should call Carol McCollough, at 586-4800, ext. 3600 or e-mail her at mccollough@mccc.edu for an application.

Bicycles Missing From Freewheels In Borough, Township

About half the bicycles are apparently missing from the bicycle program, Freewheels, inaugurated in Township and Borough on July 8.

The program, sponsored by the Greater Mercer Transportation Management Association, provides yellow, single-gear bicycles for residents' use. There is no charge.

The bicycles are available at ten sites throughout the area, including Borough Hall, the Township municipal complex, the Dinky station, Palmer Square, and the Princeton Public Library.

Riders undertake to return bicycles to one of the sites after use. The intent is to reduce pollution, promote efficient transportation, and provide unused bicycles to citizens who can benefit from them.

"I keep going out and making sweeps through town," reported Sandra Brillhart, executive director of TMA. "It is difficult to track the bikes, but at any one time I think about half of the 40 are circulating."

The first 40 bicycles were donated to the program. The plan is for there to eventually be 100 in circulation.

Ms. Brillhart said she had done some research on free bicycle programs in other municipalities. "Most vandalism occurs at the beginning, when the bicycles are first introduced," she said. "We would be naive if we didn't expect to experience some problems."

The TMA executive added that she had received much positive feedback about the program — initiated with state funds — and that the Princeton community was "generally supportive" of the program.

Free bicycle programs in many other municipalities do not include drop-off stations, she also noted. TMA felt the stations would provide it with more control of the program. Officials are considering adding even more sites, she said, including some on the University campus.

TMA is requesting that residents donate used bicycles to the program. They should have upright handlebars for baskets and the frame should be a minimum of 24 inches.

The bicycles may be taken to Kopps Cycle, 38 Spring Street, where they will be stripped to a single gear and painted yellow.

Ms. Brillhart added that TMA is seeking volunteers, to help the organization keep track of Freewheels cyclists.

Planning Board to Decide on Re-hearing For Proposed Student Center Arcade

On May 21, the Regional Planning Board gave final site plan approval to Princeton University for construction of a new campus center to the east of Washington Road. But the approval did not include the construction of a free-standing arcade on the north side of the building, or for a sign, "Frist Campus Center," that would have run across the top of the arcade.

The decision to deny, which Board members said was made for reasons of safety, was in line with the desires of a number of University students who spoke against the arcade during the Planning Board meeting.

But last Tuesday morning, the Subdivision Subcommittee of the Planning Board met and determined that the University's request to reconsider the ruling and permit construction of the arcade should be placed before the full Board. The Planning Board, at its next meeting, must vote on whether it will reconsider. If so, it will schedule a public hearing at a later date.

The request for reconsideration by the Planning Board came from University Attorney James J. Britt Jr., who said the University wanted to modify the site plan by paving the northern ten feet of the concourse between the arcade and the building in asphalt and designated for bicycles, while the southern five-foot width (closest to the arcade) would be paved in concrete pavers and designated for pedestrians.

"As a result," according to Mr. Britt, "the faster moving traffic would be guided away from the arcade so that pedestrians passing through it will have no difficulty seeing approaching bicycles. The University feels that so natural a division of traffic will develop in any case but here proposes to mandate that outcome by use of appropriate paving differences and signage."

The University did not ask for reconsideration of the sign, which was calculated by Borough Zoning Officer Frank Slimak as 334 square feet. Borough law allows signs of not more than 16 feet.

A Montgomery Abstract Artist Frees the Spirit of the Disabled

Montgomery resident Tim Lefens, an abstract artist who is gradually losing his eyesight to the progressive disease of retinitis pigmentosa, doesn't have time to feel sorry for himself.

He is too busy devising methods that will enable his students — young people severely disabled from spina bifida, cerebral palsy, muscular dystrophy, and other crippling conditions — to express themselves by creating art.

The non profit organization he founded to promote his work, Artistic Realization Technologies (A.R.T.), has begun to receive national recognition, including a recent grant of $100,000 from the Community Health Leadership Program of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation.

Mr. Lefens is one of ten recipients throughout the nation who received the award for "changing the shape of health care in America." He operates A.R.T. out of a home office in Belle Mead.

SHARING A JOKE: Teacher Tim Lefens, right, shares a laugh with artist James ("J.R.") Rodkey.

"A person with one leg is called disabled," he says. "A person with one leg can feed himself or herself, bathe, use a phone, embrace another person, and bat a fly. There are people — young people and children — in a special set of schools in New Jersey who do none of these things."

Six years ago his ophthalmologist invited him to visit one of those schools, the Matheny School and Hospital in Peapack. "It was a transforming experience," Mr. Lefens remembers, "that made me stop thinking about myself."

A few months later, he started teaching at Matheny, inventing methods that would allow his students to express themselves.

Last year, also, the state Department of Human Services conducted a successful pilot project using Mr. Lefens' techniques at its schools in Monmouth and Somerset Counties. (The department Office of Education administers 15 schools for the severely disabled throughout the state.)

Encouraged to Attempt

Mr. Lefens' methods work, he believes, because he does not focus on what his students cannot do, but rather on all the things they can do, but have never been encouraged to attempt.

He learned on Monday that Human Services is committed to supporting his program for the foreseeable future, and may want to engage him as a consultant.

"We are going to look at how the Department of Human Services can develop a more in-depth understanding of Mr. Lefens' work," noted Marilyn Crespi, Central Region administrator for the department's Office of Education. "We need to figure out a way to integrate the art program with the rest of the curriculum."

With limited use of their bodies, including the muscles needed for speech, most of Mr. Lefens' students have never spoken. They communicate "yes" and "no" by raising and lowering their eyelids, or by other facial movements.

They cannot walk, and are perpetually confined to wheel chairs. They do not feed themselves; and they certainly cannot hold pen, pencil, or paint brush.

Mr. Lefens has enabled them to produce paintings that speak volumes. A number of the paintings are now on exhibit at The Gallery at ABC, in New York City.

"The key to their liberation lies in the power of art, not as therapy or recreation, but as a critical means of articulate self-expression," Mr. Lefens wrote in the catalogue for that show.

Feelings Show

Natalia Manning, one of the artists, communicates by means of a computer-simulated voice. She took time out from her class at Matheny on Monday evening to painstakingly explain to TOWN TOPICS, "I like art because it helps me show my feelings."

Three years old when she first came to Matheny, Ms. Manning is now 22. Her acrylic-on-canvas painting in the ABC exhibition is entitled Crazy. Black lines with slightly rounded ends seem to struggle at cross purposes on a dark red background.

Chet Cheesman's vertical painting at the ABC Gallery — 65¼" x 15" — is entitled I See You Empty. It is a series of stripes in reds, whites, and blues, interrupted by bursts of color in various shapes at the bottom.

He had started a new canvas on Monday evening, also vertical, as a "tracker" marked off the first stripe.

James Rodkey's A Beor, stands 84" tall on a canvas 66½" wide. It is an abstract dark bear, unrelieved by bright colors, in intense black and gray. It was exhibited at Rutgers University's Mason Gross School of Visual Arts and the gallery at Bristol-Myers Squibb, before it finally arrived at the ABC Gallery.

Mr. Rodkey is so handicapped he cannot even eat solid food. "He's a hoot," says Mr. Lefens, "always springing practical jokes on the others."

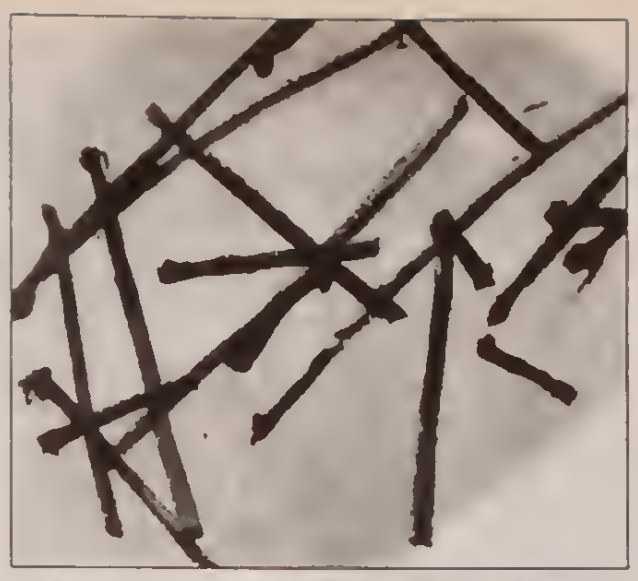
Painting is a communal affair. All the artists take a turn at directing a trained studio assistant — or tracker — to choose the proper canvas dimension, blend the paint colors correctly, and place them precisely where the artist chooses. The artist also selects shapes, line widths, and other properties.

Using a "twirling stick," which can be a pointer or ruler, the tracker moves it over a canvas until the artist indicates the spot at which to apply paint. Mr. Lefens trains the trackers, most of whom are volunteers.

Mr. Lefens also pioneered the use of a laser pointer worn on the head. By moving their heads only slightly, students can tell a tracker exactly how they want to compose a painting.



BLACK ON RED: Natalia ("Nat") Manning's acrylic-on-canvas painting, "Crazy," was produced with the help of Tim Lefens' A.R.T. techniques. It is currently on exhibit at the ABC Gallery in New York.

Their teacher has encountered opposition to his methods from people in both the disability and artistic communities, he says.

In the disability community, he observes, there are some people who "do not see the people they work with as whole; therefore, art is lowered to be seen as therapy, suggesting that the person targeted is 'damaged goods.'"

Mr. Lefens' genius has been to view his students as "perfectly fine the way they are. They just have a different body type." Traditional artists' tools will obviously not work with students who cannot move their hands. The teacher's job is to devise a method that will work.

Within the artistic community, there are critics who contend that true art must be created by the artist's own hand. That view, Mr. Lefens declares, is nonsense.

Passion to Live

You are dependent on others for your life. Freedom is in our spirits, not our bodies. It is their passion to live that makes my students artists."

It would be "criminal," Mr. Lefens charges, for anyone to refuse the severely challenged an opportunity for self-expression because of some esoteric view of "high art."

Before Mr. Lefens reached them, he adds, many of his students existed in a kind of "gray zone." It is up to the able-bodied to "go in and find them and bring them to life. There are people like them everywhere."

The methods he has pioneered with A.R.T. could be applied to other disciplines besides art, Mr. Lefens believes — such as cooking or mathematics.

For the moment, however, he is focusing on art. With the Robert Wood Johnson funds, he plans to hire a business consultant and a full-time office manager for A.R.T.

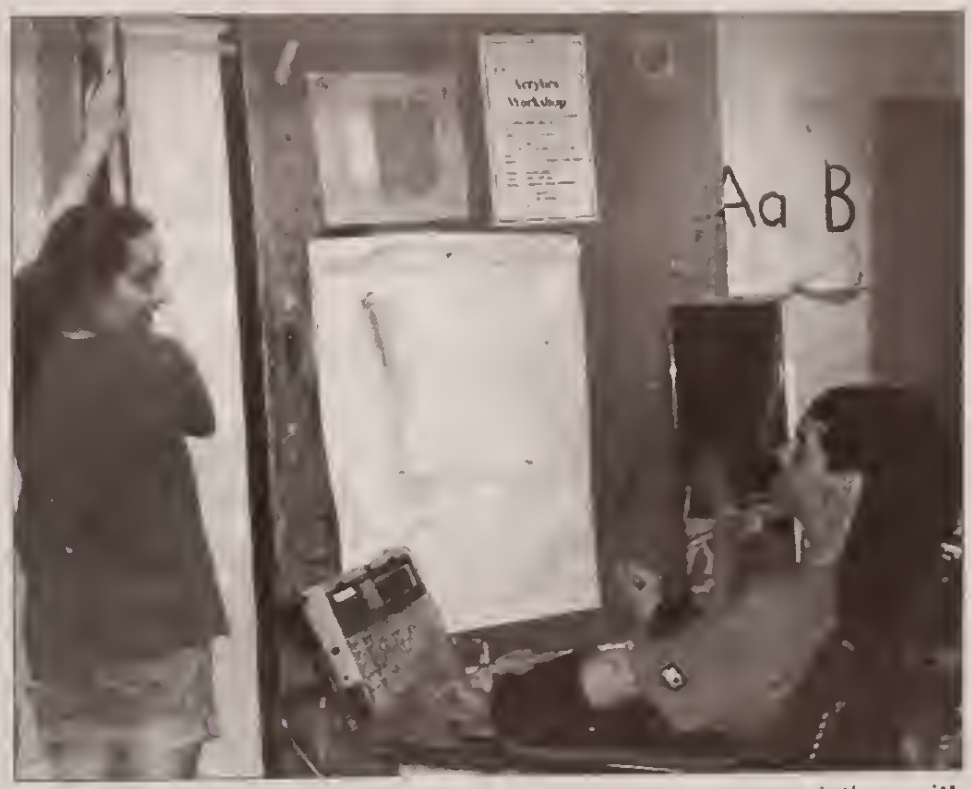
His students are preparing work for a January exhibition at Artworks, the Visual Arts School of Princeton and Trenton. They will demonstrate their production methods, using several trackers. That show must be pulled together.

Schools in Florida, Virginia, and California have expressed interest in his methods; and Mr. Lefens dreams of one day expanding the program on a national scale.

"If someone would just adopt A.R.T., we could do all the work," he promises enthusiastically.

—Anne Rivera

Note: Tim Lefens and Art Realization Technologies may be reached at 11 Whippoorwill Road, Belle Mead. The telephone number is 908-359-3098.



BEGINNING AGAIN: Chet Cheesman starts work on a new painting, with tracker Erica Saypol. He communicates his ideas by answering "yes" or "no" to her questions through head movements or computer voice.

New Wing Is Opened At St. Lawrence Rehab

St. Lawrence Rehabilitation Center in Lawrenceville, a regional provider of physical pletion brought to a close more than five years of construction and nearly $40 million spent on the 40-acre healthcare campus located just off Route I-95.

St. Lawrence shares the campus with Morris Hall, home of St. Mary's Residence, a 70-suite residential and assisted living complex; and St. Joseph's Nursing Center, a 120-bed skilled nursing facility. Also on campus are a retirement home for priests and an MRI facility.

The opening signaled completion of St. Lawrence's $14 million renovation and expansion project, making it one of the most up-to-date rehabilitation facilities in the nation.

"The care here at St. Lawrence," said U.S. Congressman Chris Smith at the Grand Opening ceremonies, "is unsurpassed anywhere in the nation, and even in the world." The Congressman spoke from personal experience. He and his family spent several weeks at St. Lawrence when his mother went through rehabilitation.

A 116-bed physical rehab hospital, St. Lawrence offers physical, occupational, speech, respiratory, and aquatic therapies; psychology; therapeutic recreation; and case management.

Specialty medical programs address brain injuries, driving and vision rehabilitation. Other services include Day Hospital, Hotel with Care (a respite program), Wheelchair & Seating Clinic, and splinting and orthotics.

Oil Spill

ON THE SCENE: Several local emergency agencies contributed both machinery and manpower to Friday's cleanup effort. (Photo by Albert Raboteau)

Bridge, and Insurance Restoration Specialists, of East Brunswick — and began on-site cleanup efforts right after the spill, but did not immediately inform local authorities. "Our first priority was to stop the flow," explained hospital spokesperson Carol Norris.

Township police learned of the accident around 6 a.m. when a passerby noticed an odor emanating from Community Park North and contacted Officer John Sealey Jr., Township Lieutenant Mark Emann said Monday.

Officer Sealey investigated, discovered the extent of the spill and traced it back to its source by looking in storm drains, according to Lt. Emann.

"They [the Medical Center] knew it happened early, and emergency officials were not informed," the Lieutenant said.

HazMat Unit Called

The police contacted the DEP around 7 that morning according to Ms. O'Donnell. Officials and/or workers from the DEP, Township Police, Township Fire Department, Princeton First Aid, LORCO and Insurance Restoration were all dispatched to Community Park North to stabilize the situation and begin the cleanup. The Hazardous Materials Unit of the Trenton Fire Department was also called in.

The crew used "booms" (white tubular sponges made of material designed to absorb oil) and constructed an underflow dam to stop the fuel from flowing into the lake, DEP emergency response specialist Robert Schrader explained at the scene Friday.

"Environmentally, we've seen no distressed marine life," he added. "Between the DEP, fire marshall, the whole department of public works, this cleanup was a community effort and they saved the lake."

As of Monday afternoon, cleanup crews had recovered a little over 1000 gallons of spilt oil according to Ms. O'Donnell. The Medical Center estimated the spill at 125 gallons, Ms. Norris said Monday; she was unaware of the cause of this discrepancy.

Township Fire Official Ted Cashel said Monday that Hospital personnel who were interviewed at the scene Friday estimated the leak at over 1000 gallons, and added that "Anyone who was there Friday could tell it was more than 150 gallons."

"The Medical Center is paying for the cost of cleanup and will look into whether our insurance or the tanker's insurance company will cover the costs involved." Ms. Norris said Monday.

She added that the hospital is, "actively seeking answers as to what caused the spill," and is consulting engineers and the fuel tank's installers, "so that if any equipment need be repaired or replaced it will be done as soon as possible."

Ms. Norris also stressed that the spill did not interrupt hospital operations or endanger nearby residents.

When asked Monday whether the hospital's failure to immediately inform local authorities and/or the DEP was improper, Ms. O'Donnell said the incident would be reviewed, but the agency was currently concentrating on the cleanup effort. As of Monday, Mr. Schrader had not yet forwarded his incident report to the DEP's enforcement department.

"The cleanup should continue through the week," said Insurance Recovery Vice President Tim Jarema, but may shift to a "maintenance phase," following a Wednesday meeting between his company, the hospital and the DEP.

Police Response

This park is the only one that is open until 10 p.m.; the Borough's other neighborhood parks close at dark.

"I think the police are doing all they can," said Clay Street resident Henry Pannell. "The disrespect people have for the police is terrible. I'm not blaming the police department. Borough Council has to pass laws."

After listening to the neighbors, Chief Michaud rose and told them that his officers share their concerns. He said that in the last two months 50 quality-of -fife offenses were reported in the John-Witherspoon neighborhood, and 15 people were arrested.

Chief Michaud outlined some of the difficulties his department faces in maintaining order as well as some of the things the residents could do to help.

File Complaints

"The law says police officers can't be offended by language, but you can," he said. "Residents can also file complaints about violations of other laws, including disorderly conduct, noise, and trespassing.

"Two or three bike officers are on duty every night, and more than half their time is spent in the neighborhood," said Chief Michaud. "We can step up enforcement and get the kids off the block in ten minutes. But they'll be screaming and their parents will be screaming."

The chief said the department did not want to start an uprising by being too hard. "We try to strike a balance. Groups of young kids are problematic. They rebel against authority, no matter what. In stepping up enforcement, we are getting to zero tolerance. Zero toferance will keep the street quiet, although it will create other problems."

One resident said that the young people were acting the way they do because there weren't enough laws. She suggested that the Borough pass an ordinance banning drinking in public. This is currently not banned, except in parks.

Mayor Marvin Reed pointed out that the Borough's Public Safety Committee was planning to meet July 22, and suggested that the committee draft an ordinance against drinking in public. The Mayor also suggested there might be an ordinance against sitting on cars.

"And if we need to set up a mechanism to impose a curfew, we may want to do that," he added.

Mayor Reed recalled the summer of 1995, when merchants complained about the behavior of young people who were congregating at Palmer Square. Throughout the summer, an expanded force patrolled the Palmer Square area during the evenings. In June and July, in the four-block area surrounding the square, police issued 16 summonses for drug offenses, 19 for criminal mischief, 10 for alcohol-related violations, seven for theft, three for assault, and six for harassment.

"If we have to reinforce police for some evenings [in the John-Witherspoon area] we will do so," said Mayor Reed.

Speaking to the assembled neighbors, Councilman Roger Martindell said, "Our experience with Palmer Square should provide you with hope. I encourage you to work with police and file complaints."

"Let's wait about a month and get together. I think you'll find that things have gotten better," Chief Michaud said.

BOTANICAL TERMINOLOGY

People who work with plants often feel they ere at a disadvantage. The tongue twisting long names were originally intended to meke lite easier lor the plant worker, not more difficult.

Many botanical terms and plant names are descriptive and pieces together trom the Latin or Greek equivalent terms.

For example monocotyledon means one seed leal, dicotyledon means two seed leaves Albatlora means white llowers. Even though Latin is no longer a school requirement, the advantages ol the Latin binomial system however lar outweighs the disadvanteges

...

Plant nemes are consistent Acer rubrum in North Dakota is also easily recognized as Acer rubrum in China Contrast that with the lerm tulip tree Two people on the same street can discuss tulip tree, with one person meaning Magnolia and the other meaning Liriodandron Plant names can tell you about plant relationships

...

If you know the Latin neme of Oragon grapa holly (Mahonia aquifolium) you know it is not a true holly (Ilex) at all. A little detective work will show that it is in the barberry family The plant classification system keeps order among the hundreds of thousands of plants in the world It is effective, simple and easily expandable. Botanical names and terms are not a nightmare, but a crossword puzzle.

Teacher Patricia Van Ness Epitomizes What Is Best About Our Public Schools

To the Editor of Town Topics:

When I first heard that Patricia Van Ness had decided to retire from the Princeton Regional School System after 33 years of uncompromising commitment to the children of our community, I didn't know whether to applaud her or to be sad for the rest of us. Mrs. Van Ness epitomizes what is best about our public school system — its dedicated skilled teachers.

I am so thankful that both of my children had the great privilege of being in her kindergarten class. I am also saddened by the thought that my daughter's class full of eager 5-year-olds will be the last to experience her incredible skill and dedication as a classroom teacher. She has earned both our applause and our tears. And, most of all, she has earned her wings!

During her career in Princeton Mrs. Van Ness has taught kindergarten and/or first grade at Johnson Park, Riverside, Littlebrook and Community Park schools. Over the years (more than 40 as an educator), Mrs. Van Ness has touched the lives of hundreds of children. How truly lucky they have been.

In the past few years I have had the chance to speak to a number of children (and their parents), teenagers and adults who were once students of Mrs. Van Ness. They have shared many wonderful comments about their experiences in her classroom, such as "I will always remember being in Mrs. Van Ness's class," or "Even though it was on*ly* kindergarten, she was the most important teacher I ever had."

I have never met anyone more professional, dedicated, energetic (at any age), respectful, and truly caring than Patricia Van Ness. One of her many wonderful qualities as a teacher is her ability to bring out the best in each and every child under her care, while maintaining a warm and nurturing environment.

She never underestimated what a child was capable of achieving and let each student know what she expected of him or her. Most importantly, she taught her students to expect the best of themselves. What an invaluable lesson for us all!

Mrs. Van Ness — my family and I would just like to say thank you for the lessons you have taught us all. Ben and Sydney thank you for teaching them to love to read and for your fabulous campouts. We will all miss you and wish you the best of luck!

Thanks to Police, Fire & Rescue Squad For Rapid Response to Park Place Fire

To the Editor of Town Topics:

We would like to say thank you to the Princeton Borough Police and Fire Departments and the Rescue Squad for their rapid response to a recent fire at 35 Park Place. Help arrived within two minutes of our call to 911.

Everyone involved was professional and courteous. We are especially appreciative of Fire Chief Tamasi and his assistant and Borough Fire Inspector Borsuk for their unhurried manner and helpful suggestions after the fire was out. Our insurance company, Walter B. Howe, our electrician, Bill Yeoman, and Purofirst, a damage clean-up company, are also to be commended: they were on-site before evening on the day of the fire.

It is comforting to know so many wonderful people are standing by and ready to help. Thanks to each and every one of you!

Griggs Farm Not Only an Affordable But Also a Wonderful Place to Live

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I'd like to take this opportunity to say what a lovely community Griggs Farm is to live in.

I was born and raised in Princeton and as a result have become quite enamored with the town. Over the years the escalating property values and taxes began to dampen my dream of remaining in this town. In 1991, my dream became a reality. My husband and I were able to afford a home in Princeton. We purchased our lovely bright and airy townhouse and immediately began making friends. Quickly these new friendships grew and became like family.

Recently I was hospitalized for back surgery. Upon returning home my neighbors presented me with a dinner schedule for the next two weeks. They each took two nights and made wonderful meals which they delivered to my door.

I would like to publicly thank my neighbors: Nike Schlessinger, Lisa and Dan Doyle, Cindy and Tom Hill, Anita and Tony Richichi, Laurie and John Krejci, Jane and Van Jones, Jennifer and J.R. Berrios.

In today's rat race lifestyle it is comforting to know that caring people such as my neighbors still exist. Griggs Farm is truly a wonderful place in which to live. SHELLEY DAVIS

Eroica Trio Adds Another Outstanding Chapter To Summer Chamber Concerts' Success Story

Now in its 30th anniversary season, the Princeton University Summer Chamber Concerts series still boasts free admission, famous artists, and enthusiastic audiences. The concerts now take place in Richardson Auditorium rather than on the lawn of the Graduate College, but the vision of Barbara Sand, the founder of the series and still its Artistic Director, endures. Last Wednesday's performance by the Eroica Trio, the second of three concerts this year, added another outstanding chapter to the summer concerts' history of success.

The most noteworthy element of the Eroica Trio's performance was the clear, transparent blend among the three instruments. Pianist Erika Nickrenz's light touch on the sustaining pedal played a crucial part in this accomplishment, though the crisp, clean playing of violinist Adela Pena and cellist Sara Sant'Ambrogio was also important. Even in the most lyrical and legato passages, the Trio achieved a tone that was rich and pure and never mushy.

The Trio managed to make its performance of Mozart's Trio in C Major, K. 548, sound intimate, as if it were being played in a salon — not a concert hall with more than 800 people listening. The players took particular advantage of the drama of the final movement, during which the typically light-hearted rondo style is interrupted by bold gestures into minor keys and contrasting loud-soft phrases in the coda.

The Eroica Trio turned next to a modern work, the Café Music for Trio, composed in 1986 by Paul Schoenfield, an American-trained composer now living in Israel. The Trio scampered and frolicked through the first movement, a spirited series of episodes, each one seamlessly leading into the next, all based on the same syncopated, Latin-dance-inspired tune. In the slow second movement, the Trio imbued the sinuous melodies with a fine swinging lilt.

The third and final movement was more audaciously dissonant and more reckless in speed than the previous two. In the Trio's hands this movement too sounded fresh, not frenzied. Schoenfield's work is featured, along with other 20th-century music, on the Eroica Trio's recently released CD.

Turning to a Classic

The second hall of the concert returned to a classic, namely Schubert's Trio No. 1 in B-flat Major, Op. 99. For this work the Trio created a more velvety texture, more legato than the style it had evoked for Mozart. Still, in the first movement the players did not let their dotted rhythms sag or their ornaments become sluggish.

The third movement was particularly dramatic, opening with a whisper, a la the best Beethoven scherzos, then exploding into the main section. The final movement, a grandiose rondo, also moved forward in bursts. The Trio created a compelling mini-drama in the episodes between statements of the refrain. After this stirring performance, the audience called the Trio members back many times to show how much it appreciated their music. —Linda Tyler

Outdoor Concert Series Due at 1860 House

1860 House is celebrating summertime with three outdoor concerts on July 26, August 9 and August 15. All three concerts begin at 6. Bring lawn chairs, blankets and a picnic supper.

The Rules & Regulations Bluegrass Band, a driving, traditional Bluegrass ensemble, will entertain on Sunday, July 26. The four members are veterans of the New York/New Jersey Bluegrass Circuit. Their instruments are banjo, fiddle, mandolin and bass.

On Sunday, August 9, the Tigertown Jazz Band will entertain with New Orleans Dixieland Jazz. The band combines the sounds of a clarinet, banjo, string bass, drums, trombone, tuba, percussion and trumpet to produce "the happiest music on earth."

The Dancing Water-World Percussion Ensemble will appear on Saturday, August 15. The group members, who have performed world music together for ten years, play a special acoustic blend including sounds and percussion instruments from South America, Africa, India and Haiti.

Concert admission is $8 adults, at the door, children free. In case of rain, the concerts will be held indoors, but without food. Montgomery's Cultural Center, 1860 House, is located at 124 Montgomery Road, Skillman, north of Rocky Hill off Route 206.

Emily Mann Play "Having Our Say" Praised in S. Africa

McCarter Theatre Artistic Director Emily Mann's award-winning play, Having Our Say-The Delony Sisters' First 100 Years, made its international debut in Johannesburg, South Africa, on Tuesday, June 30. Ms. Mann was in the audience as her play was greeted with a standing ovation. The production runs through July 25.

The opening night audience at the Market Theatre was filled with high-profile political, business and artistic figures - figures that had survived the worst days of apartheid. One of the most famous faces in the audience belonged to Adelaide Tambo, the widow of Oliver Tambo, the legendary freedom fighter and longtime president of the African National Congress.

"If you allow yourself to see only one play this year, Having Our Say is the one you simply cannot miss," reported The Citizen, Johannesburg.

The review stated that "There are many parallels between the experiences of these two African-American women and our own lives in South Africa...this play gives the audience the gift of catharsis. It comes through looking back on our own past as we witness the unfolding of theirs, and seeing our own triumph in theirs."

Searing Insights

The Star reported, "A telescopic impression of black America over the past century, as seen through the eyes of two formidable women, Sadie and Bessie Delany, maiden ladies, sisters, allows searing insights into the horrors of racial prejudice in the long term and the dramatic effects it has on an entire nation.

Related in anecdotal form and with regal dignity by Micki Grant (Sadie) and Lizan Mitchell (Bessie) speaking directly to the audience, the story is an inspiring example of just how resilient human nature can be in adversity; how good can triumph over evil."

McCarter Theatre, in association with producers Camille O. Cosby and Judith Rutherford James, presented the production, based on the best-selling memoir by Sarah L. Delany and A. Elizabeth Delany with Amy Hill Hearth, as an unprecedented cultural exchange between McCarter and the Market Theatre in Johannesburg, South Africa.

The other half of the exchange was the South African production of Athol Fugard's The Coptoin's Tiger — an extremely rare occasion where Actors' Equity allowed South African actors to perform on an American stage. Mr. Fugard, who calls himself a "soulmate of Emily Mann," praised Having Our Soy for making a "very, very positive contribution to South Africa at this time."

In the play, he said, the Delany sisters look back on their difficult lives and know that, by and large, they have won. Fugard said it is time South Africans realize they too, in fact, have won.

"We are still inclined to look back on our terrible past," he said. "Of course, I'm not saying that we shouldn't face all of those things, but we have got to move forward. The play invites and challenges us to do that."

Chamber Concerts' 30th Season Will End on July 29

THE COLORADO STRING QUARTET will perform in Richardson Auditorium on Wednesday July 29, at 8 p.m.

The fifth and final in the series of free concerts presented by Princeton University Summer Chamber Concerts will take place on Wednesday, July 29, with a performance by the Colorado String Quartet & Friends.

The Colorado Quartet distinguished itself in 1983 by winning two of the music world's highest honors, the Naumburg Chamber Music Award and First Prize at the Banff International String Quartet Competition.

Since that time it has been praised as one of the finest quartets of our time, cited for its musical integrity, impassioned playing and lyrical finesse.

The program will feature Haydn's Quartet in G Major, Opus 64, Number 4; Erwin Schulhoff's Quartet Number 1; and Brahm's Sextet in B-Flat Major, Opus 18.

The concert will begin at 8 in Richardson Auditorium on the Princeton University campus. Free tickets (a maximum of four per person), required for admission, will be distributed on a first-come, first-served basis at the Richardson Auditorium box office beginning at 6 p.m. on the day of the concert only.

Admission to the auditorium begins at 7:30. Concert-goers are encouraged to picnic on the grass behind Alexander Hall before each concert.

Concert Program Continues Schedule At Choir College

Westminster Choir College continues its 1998 Summer Concerts series the week of July 27 with a choral concert, a handbell concert, piano and voice recitals, and performances by high school students participating in summer workshops on the Westminster campus.

On Monday, July 27, Jason Ianuzzi will conduct Magnum Opus in a performance of Schubert's Mass in G and Haydn's Te Deum. This choral ensemble is composed of Westminster students and alumni. Before enrolling as a student at Westminster Choir College, Mr. Ianuzzi was assistant conductor of the chorus at Pinkerton Academy in Derry, N.H.

On Tuesday, July 28, Nancy Froysland Hoerl, soprano; Elem Eley, baritone; and Frank Abrahams, piano, will celebrate the 100th anniversary of George Gershwin's birth with "S' Wonderful: An Evening of Gershwin." Members of Westminster's faculty, this trio appeared in the popular "An Evening of Rodgers and Hart" at Westminster earlier this year.

Nancy Froysland Hoerl has performed leading roles with OperaDelaware, Fargo-Moorhead Opera, Berks Grand Opera, Baltimore Chamber Opera and Rose Valley Orchestra and Chorus.

Elem Eley has received wide praise for his performances in opera, concert and recital throughout the United States and Europe. As winner of the 1996 Joy in Singing Award, he made his New York recital debut at Merkin Hall.

Director of Westminster's Summer Music Theater Workshop, Frank Abrahams has served as musical director of more than 25 different productions by professional, community and school companies. He is also conductor of the Westminster Conservatory Chorale.

Handbell Concert

On Wednesday, July 29, Kathleen Ebling-Thorne will conduct participants in Westminster's summer handbell program in a performance of original compositions and works arranged for handbells. Director of the Westminster Concert Bell Choir, Ms. Ebling-Thorne is a member of Westminster's sacred music department. Under her direction the choir has performed on NBC's "Today Show" and National Public Radio.

On Thursday, July 30, pianist Marvin Rosen will perform a varied program that will include works by Alan Hovhaness, Leonard Bernstein, Richard Yardumian, and Arnold Rosner. A frequent performer in the Princeton area, Dr. Rosen has said that his mission is "to expose beautiful, little-known 20th-century music to audiences."

On Friday, July 31, high school students participating in Westminster's summer composition week will present their original works at 1 p.m. in The Playhouse. High school students participating in Westminster's organ week will perform at 1:30 p.m. in Scheide Hall.

On Saturday, August 1, participants in Westminster middle school vocal camp will present their final recital at 10 a.m. in Bristol Chapel.

On Sunday, August 2, participants in Westminster's high school musical theater workshop will present a final performance at 3 p.m. in The Playhouse.

Unless otherwise noted, all performances begin at 7:30 p.m. in Bristol Chapel on the Westminster campus, and are open to the public at no charge. Westminster Choir College is located on the corner of Hamilton Avenue and Walnut Lane.

'Taming of the Shrew' Due at Summer Theatre

Princeton Summer Theater will present the third production of its 1998 season, William Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew, directed by Sean Garrett-Roe, at Hamilton Murray Theater on the Princeton campus.

The production will run for three weekends, July 23 to 25, July 30 to August 1, and August 6 to 8 at 8 p.m., with 2 p.m. matinees Sunday, July 26, August 2, and August 8.

Mr. Garrett-Roe directed Brighton Beach Memoirs this past season at Theatre Intime.

Ticket prices are $10 regular admission, $8 seniors and University faculty/staff, and $6 students and children.

STORY-TELLING GRANT: A $1,000 grant from Western Post Services' Princeton office will enable the Historical Society of Princeton to launch a monthly story hour for children, starting in September. George St. Playhouse Announces Schedule For 1998-99 Season

George Street Playhouse in New Brunswick is celebrating its 25th anniversary. To mark the event, Artistic Director David Saint has selected an ambitious bill of new offerings and a timeless classic.

The season will include a world premiere, three regional premieres, a play by Chekhov, and the premieres of the Next Stage Series and the Diva Project.

"Thanks to a gift from the Eleanor B. Reiner Foundation of $1 million, we are able to raise the level of the work that we produce by an order of magnitude," said Tom Werder, managing director.

After-Ploy, written by and starring Anne Meara, will kick of the season and will run from September 19 through October 18.

Winner of the Outer Critics Circle Award, After-Ploy is the tale of two couples whose evening at the theater culminates in a ride through careers, middle age, friendship, and the future.

A world premiere of a play by A.R. Gurney, Dorlene and the Guest Lecturer, will be at George Street from October 24 through November 24.

Mr. Gurney is the author of a number of successful plays including Sylvia, Love Letters, The Cocktail Hour, and The Dining Room.

Inspecting Carol, a New Jersey premiere by Daniel Sullivan and the Seattle Repertory Theatre Company, will run from November 28 through December 27.

A satirical take on productions of Dickens' A Christmas Carol, the play goes backstage to a skewed world where Tiny Tim has gotten fat, Bob Cratchit has a bad back, and Scrooge speaks in tongues.

Chekhov's The Sea Gull will be at the playhouse from January 16 through February 21, 1999. It will receive an all-new interpretation directed by Mark Nelson, of Broadway's Picasso at the Lapin Agile and the New York production of June Moon.

Jolson Sings Again, an East Coast premiere by Arthur Laurents, will play from February 27 through March 28. Mr. Laurents is the author of West Side Story, The Way We Were, and Gypsy.

The final production will be either How I Learned to Drive or Collected Stories, starring Uta Hagen.

Two new events will close the George Street Playhouse season, both of which will take place in the second stage theatre. They are, The Next Stage Series, three new world premiere plays presented in staged readings; and The Diva Project, a new solo performance festival.

A variety of subscription packages are available. For information, call (732) 246-7717.

13-Week Music Series Begins at Howell Farm

Andy May, Tony Trischka, Kenny Kosek and Rudi Weeks will bring their fiddles, banjos, and original songs to Howell Farm's Amazing Maize Maze on Saturday, August 1, kicking off a 13-week music series with an evening of country, bluegrass and blues.

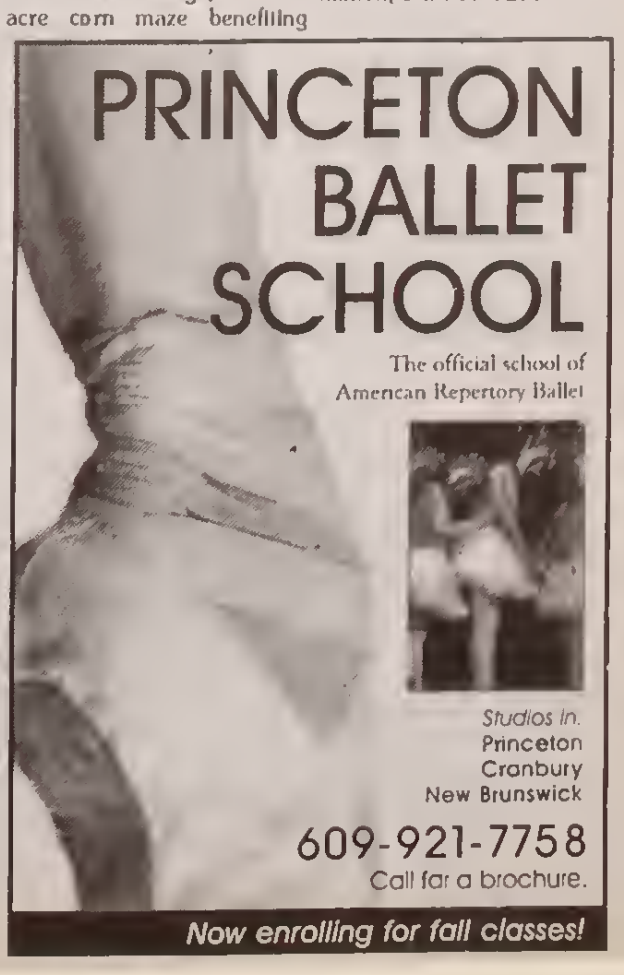
The performance will highlight the grand opening of "Silks and Strings," a 3½-acre corn maze benefiting restoration of Howell's historic barn.

Andy May and Company will perform their foot-stomping, roof-raising music in a barn hand-raised for the occasion by the New Jersey Barn Company. The public can witness the barn raising in the Maze Courtyard from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. prior to the 7 p.m. concert.

Andy May is an award winning musician, songwriter and performer who brings his talents to Howell Farm from Nashville, Tenn. Progressive banjo player Tony Trischka was described by Billboard Magazine as "one of the most inventive banjoists of all time."

Fiddler Kenny Kosek has been the featured soloist on thousands of albums and soundtracks and recently brought his fiddling on stage to the Broadway productions of Foxfire and Big River. Rudi Weeks performs and records extensively; his style spans classical, jazz, R&B, rock and country music.

The concert and barn-raising will be held in the courtyard of the Howell Farm's Maze, located on Valley Road, just off Route 29, two miles south of Lambertville. For more information, call 737-3299.



ART

ETS Seeks Artists To Show During 1999

Coordinators of the art galleries at Educational Testing Service (ETS) have issued a call for artists for 1999.

Every year, ETS exhibits the works of locally- and nationally-known artists in its two galleries, the David J. Brodsky Gallery at the Chauncey Conference Center and Lounge B in Conant Hall. Interested artists may call Lisa Tinsman, at 734-5621, for an application and guidelines.

The selection committee prefers two-dimensional works for its corporate exhibit space; and artists must submit 10 to 15 slides with their application forms. No color photocopies or photographs will be accepted. The deadline for applications and slides is September 1.

ETS pays for transportation to and from the exhibit space, setup and publicity for the chosen artists. Artists may offer their pieces for sale without commission and will receive all proceeds.

For further information, call 734-5050, or contact ETS's Web site at www.ets.org.

Summer Arts Programs To Run through Sept. 4

The Arts Council of Princeton will hold weekly summer classes for children and teens through September 4.

Traditional and contemporary programs for children (ages 5 to 12) include sessions on clay and sculpture, drawing, painting, mask-making, book-making, photography and theater arts. Programs for teenagers — to the age of 17 — include ceramics and photography.

For further information, or to request a summer flyer, call the Arts Council, at 924-8777.

Flyers may also be picked up at the Princeton Public Library, Halo Pub, Micawber Books, or Small World Coffee.

Exhibits

An exhibition of work by artists from both eastern and western Europe will be at the Marsha Child Contemporary Gallery, 20 Nassau Street, through August 8.

Entitled "Uncommon Beauty," the exhibition focuses on compositions created with techniques that may be unfamiliar to American collectors.

STUART ARTIST: Katryna Carter, and her work in the Stuart Country Day School Senior Art Show.

SENIOR SHOW: Anne-Sybil Bragadir stands with a sample of her work at the Stuart Country Day School Senior Art Show.

Hand-pulled limited edition prints, drawings and original paintings are featured in the exhibition. Gallery hours are Fridays and Saturdays, from 11-6; Sundays, from 12-5; and by appointment. For more information, call 497-7330.

Two Princeton residents — Anne Sybil Bragadir and Katryna Carter — exhibited their work in the senior art show which took place in May and June at Stuart Country Day School.

Exhibitors are students in the advanced placement studio art course. To be admitted to the course, they must have taken three art electives before their senior year and demonstrated a strong commitment to making and learning about art on a disciplined level.

One of the course requirements is that a 40-piece portfolio be submitted to the College Board in May, along with a written commentary about the artist's chosen emphasis or concentration.

An exhibition of 22 color photographs by Princeton resident Charles Phox, depicting "People, Places, and Things" photographed in Princeton, is now at the Princeton Public Library, 65 Witherspoon Street.

Mr. Phox, a freelance photographer whose work has appeared in a number of local newspapers, including TOWN TOPICS, is now a portrait photographer in the New Brunswick area. He is preparing a photojournalism project on "Homeless People of America."

ROMANIAN GROUP: "The Couple with the Dog," by Romanian-born artist Georges Mazilu will be at the Marsha Child Contemporary Gallery, 20 Nassau Street, through August 8.

SAFE! The throw to Kyle Rasavage was a little too late to catch this West Windsor runner Thursday. However, the Princeton catcher did tag out an opponent on the very next play. (Photo by Albert Raboteau)

TOWN TOPICS is printed on recycled paper

Princeton All-Stars Beat N. Trenton Fall to W. Windsor

On Saturday The Princeton Little League's 10-year-old all-star team beat Trenton 6-5 in a loser's bracket District 12 tournament game. Princeton was sent to the loser's bracket Thursday by West Windsor, who beat them 17-1 in a four inning contest.

"Both teams played real well," said Princeton manager Ken Norcross of Saturday's contest. "I thought it was very competitive."

SPORTS

Norcross cited several strong throws by outfielders Alex and Nessas and Watson Warriner to cutoff boy Matt Welsh — who in turn threw out Trenton base-runners — as key plays. He also praised strong relief pitching by Tyler Moni, and the defensive play of catcher Kyle Rasavage.

"We had lots of singles, lots of guys on base," he said of the contest.

Those Princeton fans who came out to see their team's first 10-year-old all-star playoff home game in five years went home disappointed as the rival boys from across Route One dominated.

West Windsor starter Ty Anderson no-hit Princeton until the fourth inning when Kyle Rasavage doubled for his team's only hit of the day. The only other Princeton highlight was a daring, delayed steal of home by Matt Norcross for his team's only run.

At press time, Princeton was gearing up to play West End in a win-or-go-home game scheduled for Tuesday night.

STURHAHN, DICKENSON & BERNARD

The luckiest bad bounce in a baseball game resulted in a player getting a gold mine ... This amazing story happened in Salt Lake City ... Bill Griffiths was playing first base in a sandlot game in 1905 when a grounder hit a pebble and the ball bounced over Griffiths' head ... Griffiths picked up the pebble ... As he was about to throw it away, he noticed it looked different than any ordinary pebble ... He put it in his pocket and went back to the field after the game, picked up other pebbles and contacted some friends ... They discovered that those pebbles were gold nuggets ... They arranged to buy the ballpark and dug some more ... Griffiths had discovered a gold mine and he became a multi-millionnaire — all because of a bad bounce in a baseball game.

Post 218 Beats Ewing In MCALL Standings

Princeton went 1-4 in the final week of Mercer County American Legion League (MCALL) play. It wound up 6-19, 15 games behind first place Hamilton and 3½ games in front of last place Ewing. Its one victory this week came against Ewing.

Princeton surrendered five runs in the final two innings to lose its regular-season finale 11-10 at North Trenton Saturday.

Colin Torre homered; Frank Bernazard went 3-for-4 with a double and triple; and Jeff Mapps went 2-for-3 with a stolen base to give 218 a lead which it could not maintain.

Post 218 demolished Ewing 15-4 Friday. Princeton scored seven runs in the first inning to put that game away early.

Hamilton Post 31 beat Princeton 4-0 to clinch the Mercer Legion title Thursday. Post 218 pitchers Dave Daniels and Luke Tozzi held the champs to just four hits but got no run support, despite an equal amount of hits by their squad.

Both teams stranded four base-runners. Princeton's Jeff Gronczewski and Colin Torre each doubled, then died on the base-paths. Daniels got the loss and 218 fell to 5-19.

On July 15, Princeton and Bordentown Post 26 completed their game from June 30, which had been delayed by rain. Post 218 had led 11-10 when the game was postponed, but its opponent belted four doubles and a triple in the sixth inning to score six and lead by five. Princeton could muster no additional offense and lost 16-11.

Back on the 30th, 26's Chris Larcome and 218's Chris Butts each smacked grand slams in a memorable, 17-run fourth inning.

Post 218 upset league runners-up Broad Street Park Post 313 July 7, but could not repeat its feat July 14, and fell, 12-5, to the favorites at Valley Road Field. Luke Tozzi had pitched a brilliant, one run, complete game for the earlier upset, but surrendered five earned runs in three innings on the 14th and dropped to 2-3.

Chris Butts and Mike Miller led Princeton's hitters; each went 2-for-4. Butts also scored a run and batted in two more.

Male Shepherd Mix, About 1 Year, Neutered, Black/Tan

There's a lot of talk among politicians these days about family values. Well, do you know who had the original family values? Right. We canine people. Our ancestors had to hunt for their meals, but they really did not want to. They would much rather stay home with friends and relations. Oh, what's that, you don't believe me because I am not a Scientist? In that case, go to the library; check out some books by Mr. Farley Mowat. And then come to S.A.V.E. and meet me, a really friendly family values kind of guy.

Jim is going home today, with a little help from his friends!

Jim and his wife visit his mother-in-law regularly here at Hamilton Continuing Care Center. They have always been impressed with the care she's received. So when Jim fell at home and suffered multiple fractures, his doctor suggested short-term subacute rehab before returning home. For Jim, there was only one choice —Hamilton Continuing Care Center.

Jim worked hard with his friends in rehab and was able to drive home 2 weeks later. Through the short time Jim was with us he made a lot of friends and still visits them regularly.

For more information on how you or a loved one can become a Hamilton Continuing Care Success Story, call Jennifer Hess at (609) 588-0091.

For purchase prices up to $283,925, monthly mortgage payments (principal + interest) quoted in our ads are for qualified buyers based upon a 20% downpayment and a conventional 30-year fixed rate loan at 6.75% with 3 points. A.P.R. 7.109%. As an example, a $100,000 loan would mean 360 monthly payments of $646.60. For purchase prices from $283,926 to $529,000, the monthly payments are for qualified buyers based upon a 20% downpayment and calculated at 7.00% with 3 points on a "Jumbo" 30-year fixed rate mortgage with an A.P.R. of 7.316%. As example of a $500,000 loan would mean 360 monthly payments of $3,226.51. Figures herein are approximate and do not include property taxes, hazard insurance, or homeowners association dues for a condominium purchase. Interest rates quoted are as of Jan. 2, 1998 and subject to change. Not responsible for typographical errors, while information is believed accurate, we request that the payment be validated with a mortgage provider prior to purchase.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

By Tod Peyton

IT'S A PAIN IN THE NECK!

We want the properties we market to look spotless and wonderful, but even the most impeccable housekeepers find that keeping their house in prime showing condition begins to wear thin after a few weeks.

It is a lot of work to keep the beds perpetually made, the kitchen and bathrooms spotless and closets neat. Is it worth it? It is — if you want to sell your house for top dollar in a reasonable amount of time. Buyers often see normal clutter, and what registers is "this house hasn't been maintained." They see bathtub rings and think "plumber's bills." Dirt under the radiators causes them to imagine having to replace the entire heating and air conditioning system. People are often functioning more on emotion than logic when selecting a house. You can help your Realtor by minimizing the amount of imagination that buyers will need in order to fall in love with your home.

For dependable, individual advice on buying or selling real estate, call Tod Peyton, Realtor or any Peyton Associate at 921-1550. Feel free to stop by my office at 343 Nassau Street in Princeton.
